The University of Bolton has embarked on an ambitious enhancement agenda as a “teaching intensive, research informed” University. We are currently seeking to appoint a high potential candidate to contribute to the delivery, development, research and administrative support of undergraduate and postgraduate programmes, which will include the academic and personal support of students.

Relevant teaching / mentoring and games development experience is important together with the ability to undertake appropriate subject specific research and /or advanced creative practice. At the University of Bolton, we place a strong emphasis on relevant industry experience and therefore would be especially keen to hear from candidates who are able to demonstrate an excellent understanding of recent developments gained from working in the games industry.

The University is seeking candidates with knowledge and experience of some of the following; Unity scripting; UE4 Blueprints; ability to learn and script using new game engines; ability to design, develop and implement various types of games mechanics; working professionally in the games industry in a Technical Designer role or similar.

The successful candidate would need to show a desire and ability to deliver knowledge in an appealing manner and be passionate about creating an environment in which our students can thrive. Although teaching experience would be advantageous, full support and training will be provided for candidates who are able to demonstrate strong relevant industry experience.
