Powers of critical analysis and independent thinking which enhance a commitment to Community Work values of promoting participation in a democratic society; 5. The ability to apply theory to practice through undertaking an element of applied fieldwork in community contexts and settings in the second, third and fourth year of study
Distinctive features of the programme

1. The Foundation element of the programme provides an opportunity for you to explore areas of Social Policy and Social Sciences focusing on the different specialisms of Community Studies, Youth and Community Work, Health and Psychology. It will also help you make choices regarding progression routes to take during the remainder of the programme.
2. Community Studies actively supports and contributes to the thriving voluntary sector in the North West through the provision of short courses, student placements and skilled graduates. The Voluntary Sector has a well documented history of community engagement and social entrepreneurship. Being on the edge of public services, it often finds innovative and cost effective solutions to problems such as homelessness, drug dependency and joblessness. Community Studies has a role in developing human capacity and 'The Big Society' in times of economic austerity.
3. Community Studies has established partnerships with local authorities, and educational and cultural organisations and continues to forge new ways of collaborative working that respond to local need and positively contribute to the prosperity of our region.
4. Community Studies are currently liaising with Voluntary Services Overseas to develop international opportunities for student placements within established projects which fight global poverty and inequality.
5. Opportunities for International field trips that build on previous student visits to ESF projects in Genk (Belgium) and Leeuwarden (Holland).
6. The Active Citizen Volunteering Placement requires you to accrue 40 hours as a community / service user representative engaged on a participative consultative panel and a further 20 hours working with other students and a local charity to develop and deliver a community project. Examples of possible consultative groups include Parent Teacher Associations, Patient Liaison Committees, Police and Community Together (PACT) meetings, Neighbourhood Watch, Community and Tenant Associations and Neighbourhood Regeneration Groups. Student participation links with government policy, it benefits communities / services in terms of increased participation; fits with the university objective to "involve staff and students in community activities" (Strategic Plan 2010 – 16, p 14) and will of course benefit student volunteers in terms of enhancing their learning experience, sense of social responsibility and preparation for employment.

- You will be introduced to the principles of project management and the role of the project manager. You will take on the role of a university employee and develop a project proposal which would meet an objective as identified in the University Strategic Plan.

Learning and teaching strategies

A variety of teaching and learning methods are employed throughout the programme in order to ensure the acquisition and development of appropriate skills, knowledge and concepts to achieve the stated learning outcomes. Active learning is promoted by seminars, self-directed study, lectures, video viewing and analysis, tutorials, IT sessions, library and guided study. Visits to community settings, simulation of funding applications, proposals for project development and mock interviews, Moodle the University's Virtual Learning Environment and other appropriate technology are utilised throughout the programme. Guest speakers with significant current experience of community service delivery regularly disseminate knowledge to students. Representatives from community and voluntary organisations also deliver seminars enabling you to be up-to-date with current policy and legislation.

The Personal Tutoring scheme has been embedded within the community studies curriculum throughout each of the 3 years of study. You are provided with 6 weeks in semester 1 and 4 weeks in semester 2 in year 1 of your studies. Year 2 and 3 are provided with 4 weeks in semester 1 and 4 weeks in semester 2. Personal Tutoring is delivered as part of the core curriculum and supports our learning and teaching strategies.

PDP is an essential element of the learning and teaching strategy and you are expected to identify skills and qualities you already possess before embarking upon the placement. You are also required to identify areas which need to be developed and improved upon whilst on placement. Placement supervisors play a vital and substantial role within the PDP process.

Assessment strategy

The assessment for each module may differ considerably. Each module has clearly identified aims, learning outcomes, and the nature and type of assessment for that module is clearly specified and linked to these learning outcomes.

There are two forms of assessment. The first is formative, which consists of tasks designed to enable you and your tutors to assess and monitor your on-going progress. Typically these will consist of seminar presentations, group exercises, and analysis of documents and short answer tests and on line quizzes. The second type of assessment is summative, and will count towards the final grading of your performance on the module. We have sought to provide a range of assessments to test your theoretical knowledge, along with the opportunity to apply it. We will use a range of methods, such as essays, presentations, written reports, case studies, and one HE5 module, Theories and Perspectives on Social Welfare will consist of an open book examination, designed to assess your ability to produce coherent work under time constraints. We believe that this range of assessments will provide you with the opportunity to develop and demonstrate the types of skills required of someone working in the community. The full module specifications describe the assessment briefly, and the module guide will give you the details.

The Programme is conducted in accordance with the University's Under Graduate Modular framework regulations. Important information on assessment regulations and other information on assessment (including marking criteria and definitions of grade descriptions) are contained in the Assessment Regulations for the Undergraduate Modular Framework documents via

Students are encouraged to read and understand this information. It will be assumed that you are familiar with the Assessment Regulations for the Undergraduate Modular Framework.

Honours Classification

(i) A student will normally be awarded the honours classification resulting from application of the following algorithm:

Rule ACM20

A weighted average of the marks from modules worth a total of 200 credits at Levels HE5 and HE6 combined, including the marks from modules worth no more than 80 credits at least at Level HE5 (weighted 30 percent) and marks from modules worth at least 120 credits at Level HE6 (weighted 70 percent), which represent the best marks achieved by you at those Levels.

(ii) Rule ACM6

Where a student has marks available for 120 credits or less at Level HE6, the honours classification shall normally be based solely on a simple average of the available marks for modules at Level HE6, subject to there being marks for a minimum of 60 credits awarded by the University. Upgrading of the honours classification will not normally be available to students for whom there are marks available for fewer than 120 credits at Level HE6, unless explicitly approved.

Role of external examiners
