The University of Bolton is a “Teaching Intensive, Research Informed” higher education institution whose distinctive high quality, student-focussed, undergraduate and postgraduate programmes attract students from all over the world.

Our staff are at the heart of everything we do: they are highly qualified and experienced in their fields, supporting their teaching practice by carrying out quality research and engaging in continuous professional development. Staff pride themselves on being outstanding professionals that provide excellent learning, teaching and applied research and support in the provision of custom-designed, industry led courses in numerous subject areas.

We are looking to appoint a Senior Lecturer in Nursing – Non-medical prescribing. The key duties of the role holder will be to teach on the undergraduate and taught postgraduate programmes across the Nursing (NMP) portfolio, and to contribute to the management of these programmes, where possible. It is expected that the role holder will contribute to the development of all facets of Nursing (NMP) within the subject group and to the wider portfolio of the Faculty.

You will have a first degree in a relevant area and registration with the NMC. Ideally you will have a teaching qualification and a PhD/Professional Doctorate or be willing to complete in dedicated timescales.

The successful candidate should demonstrate an awareness of current developments in Nursing (NMP) as well as being able to facilitate the creation and maintenance of a range of links between academic and research initiatives and employers. Relevant teaching and programme delivery experience, as well as being able to undertake appropriate subject specific research and/or advanced creative practice and/or enterprise activity is essential.
