The University of Bolton is a “Teaching Intensive, Research Informed” higher education institution whose distinctive high quality, student-focused, undergraduate and postgraduate programmes attract students from all over the world. Our staff are at the heart of everything we do: they are highly qualified and experienced in their fields, supporting their teaching practice by carrying out quality research and engaging in continuous professional development. Staff pride themselves on being outstanding professionals that provide excellent teaching, learning and applied research and support in the provision of custom-designed, industry led courses in numerous subject areas.

The key duties of the role holder will be to contribute to the development and delivery of the Operating Department Practitioner (ODP) programme(s), in addition to academic and pastoral support of students. The role holder will be required to teach across all ODP discipline subjects, in addition to contributing to recruitment, retention and marketing activities. HCPC and/or NMC registration is an essential requirement of this role, in addition to a first degree and preferably a teaching qualification.

We are particularly interested in candidates from an academic background, who have taught on a similar programme, but all with relevant experience of both clinical practice and education will also be considered. Successful candidates will demonstrate a comprehensive awareness of current developments and challenges within ODP practice, education and training, with particular focus on ODP apprenticeship provision.

A commitment to undertaking higher level studies e.g., MA, PhD and gaining fellowship of Advance HE is an essential requirement of the role. Please note, with this role there may also be a requirement to contribute to teaching and assessment across the School of Nursing and Midwifery.
