Welcome!

Welcome to the second edition of Shelf Life of the academic year, and a special welcome to all of our new students.

Automatic Renewals now live!

The University Library has introduced automatic renewals for all staff and students. We aim to make it as easy as possible for you to keep using the books you have borrowed. If they are not in demand, they will be renewed automatically, and you will be informed of this each time by email. We can then focus on making sure that items that are in demand can be made available to more borrowers.

Binding Services

In the middle of your dissertation? Have you thought about how to have it bound? See the Library website for further information on binding for projects, assignments and dissertations.

Keep Up To Date with Us!

The Library is on Facebook, Twitter and Google Plus. Follow us or like us for regular updates.
Discover library resources with Discover@Bolton

Discover@Bolton allows you to search across multiple electronic resources via a single interface. Where we have access to the full-text, you will be able to access that from Discover@Bolton too. Available both on- and off-campus, Discover@Bolton makes access to electronic journal articles, content from electronic books and even a wide range of good quality open access material very simple.

To access Discover@Bolton, look out for the search box on the library website, or go directly to http://bolton.summon.serialssolutions.com/. Want to know more? Speak to any member of library staff, or take a look at the information on the library website at www.bolton.ac.uk/library/Electronic-Resources/Discover-At-Bolton.aspx

Enabling open access for REF 2020: researchers read on!

Did you know that HEFCE has mandated that any journal article or conference paper that is to be considered for REF 2020 must be made open access? To start with, what exactly is open access? The concept of open access is simple: research is free at the point of access. Open access ensures that research is freely accessible via the Internet; it does not rely on institutional subscriptions, or logging in. There are two ways in which as an author you can engage in open access: deposit your research in an open access repository such as the University of Bolton Institutional Repository (UBIR) or publish in an open access journal. The main way you can engage in open access – and in particular if you wish to fulfil HEFCE requirements for REF 2020 – is to deposit your research in UBIR.

This is where the library can help! Simply send your research to ubir@bolton.ac.uk and we will work with you to make your work open access. Want to know more? We are also happy to visit you and you colleagues to deliver presentations, or even meet informal talk about this important issue. Just get in touch with ubir@bolton.ac.uk: we’d love to hear from you!

If you have any questions about or any comments about the articles mentioned here please do not hesitate to contact a member of staff:

Help Desk: Phone: 01204 903094. Email: learning-issuedesk@bolton.ac.uk

Subject Help: Phone: 01204 903094. Email: subjecthelp@bolton.ac.uk

www.bolton.ac.uk/Library/